

Community Engagement and Advocacy and our Fellows

Orquidia (Kiki) Torres was selected to participate in an in-depth sexual and reproductive health leadership and advocacy-training program through Physicians for Reproductive Health. <https://prh.org/programs/leadership-training-academy/>

Gerald Montano wrote a blog for Pediatric News on the care of sexual minority youth.

Merrian Brooks and Kiki Torres have provided expertise and support to community facilitators who are implementing a CDC-funded health masculinity, healthy sexuality curriculum at local YMCA and Urban League sites.

Merrian Brooks received funding from the Staunton Farm Foundation to examine the implementation of motivational interviewing training for probation officers (for use when engaging youth).

Kiki Torres gave a lecture on puberty to a group of 5th grade girls at Faison Elementary School in Homewood.